

English

Common errors

(PART II)

lead

- 1 x ~~She led me to an Indian restaurant for lunch.~~ [28]
✓ She took me to an Indian restaurant for lunch.
'Lead' is only used when someone is literally showing the way, often walking in front.
- 2 x ~~Our teacher led us to go to the market.~~ [306]
✓ Our teacher took us to the market.
The Cantonese uses two verbs in 帶我跑去 but 'go' is not used in English with 'take'.

lend

- 1 x ~~I lent a book from the library.~~ [92]
✓ I borrowed a book from the library.
A library 'lends' books to people who 'borrow' them. Cantonese uses for both verbs, changing just the preposition and word order.
- 2 x ~~Library books can lend for two weeks.~~ [280]
✓ Library books can be borrowed for two weeks.
With 'books' the subject, the passive of 'borrow' is used.

like

- x ~~I am very like ice cream.~~ [286]

46

lunch

- x ~~We went shopping, had lunch, then saw a film.~~ [183]
✓ We went shopping, had lunch, then saw a film.
Meals (e.g. breakfast, lunch and dinner) do not usually take an article unless there is an adjective as well: 'a hot breakfast', 'a good lunch'. The normal expression is 'to have lunch'.

main

- x ~~I was born in main China.~~ [29]
✓ I was born in mainland China.
'Mainland' is the equivalent of 大陸, the major part of a country/continent without its islands. Because Taiwan and at least some of Hong Kong are islands, 'mainland China' has been used before 1997 for the People's Republic of China.

maintain

- x ~~I have to work hard to maintain my life.~~ [368]
✓ I have to work hard to earn my living.
To 'earn one's living' is to work for the money necessary for one's life, i.e. food, housing etc.

major

- x ~~The major people support this plan.~~ [162]
✓ The majority of the people support this plan.
'Major' is an adjective meaning 'greater'; what is needed here is the noun 'majority' meaning the greater part.

make

- 1 x ~~His parents make him to study hard.~~ [267]
✓ His parents make him study hard.
In the expression 'make somebody do something' the second verb does not take 'to', although it is infinitive.
- 2 x ~~She made a good result in her test.~~ [358]
✓ She got a good result in her test.
One 'has/gets/achieves' results.
- 3 x ~~The noise makes me cannot sleep.~~ [315]
✓ The noise stops me sleeping.

✓ I like ice cream very much.
'Am like' means 'look like', while 'like' is 'to be fond of'. Also, 'very' cannot go before a verb in English the way it does in Cantonese eg. 我好中意. Instead 'very much' is used, usually after the verb.

list

- x ~~This form lists out the entry requirements.~~ [246]
✓ This form lists the entry requirements.
Although the Cantonese is 列出, 'out' is not used in English.

listen

- 1 x ~~I like listening pop music.~~ [247]
✓ I like listening to pop music.
'Listen' never takes a direct object; one listens 'to' something usually.
- 2 x ~~They can't listen to the foreigner speaking English.~~ [87]
✓ They can't understand the foreigner speaking English.
To listen is to make an effort to hear. And one may hear a foreign language but not understand. The process is listen - hear - understand.

living

- x ~~Her living style has changed since her success.~~ [357]
✓ Her lifestyle has changed since her success.
One could say 'style of living' but 'lifestyle' is a more common expression.

luck

- x ~~I had a good luck the other day.~~ [169]
✓ I had some good luck the other day.
'Luck' is uncountable, so cannot take 'a'. It should be 'some good luck' or simply 'good luck'.

lucky

- x ~~Many people believe the colour red will bring them lucky.~~ [145]
✓ Many people believe the colour red will bring them luck.
✓ Many people believe the colour red will make them lucky.
'Lucky' is the adjective, so the 47

'Make someone' should not be followed by a negative verb. 'Stop someone' should be used with the '-ing' form of the verb.

many

- 1 x ~~Many of friends came to see her off at the airport.~~ [184]
✓ Many friends came to see her off at the airport.
✓ Many of her friends came to see her off at the airport.
'Many of' is only used when followed by a definite group, some of whom are not included in the 'many'. When simply followed by a noun, 'many' does not take 'of'.
- 2 x ~~Many and many people go to China for Lunar New Year.~~ [185]
✓ Many people go to China for Lunar New Year.
Although one can say 'more and more' or 'lots and lots of', this pattern cannot be used with 'many'.

mark

- x ~~It's safer to buy a well-known mark of VCR.~~ [57]
✓ It's safer to buy a well-known brand of VCR.
The products of different companies are known as different 'brands' or 'makes'; 'mark' is not used on its own, in this sense, but a 'trademark' is the registered name or sign of a company.

marry

- x ~~Cathy will marry with Paul soon.~~ [248] ✓ Cathy will marry Paul soon.
'Marry' takes a direct object.

memorise

- x ~~I memorised that I had to go out tonight.~~ [30]
✓ I remembered that I had to go out tonight.
To 'memorise' is to learn something by heart, while to keep something in mind, or to recall it, is to 'remember'.

mention

- x ~~Before I go, I must mention about the picnic.~~ [249]

midnight

- ✓ Before I go, I must mention the picnic. To 'mention' is to 'say something about' a topic, so it cannot take 'about'.

- x In the ~~midnight~~ he woke up with a bad dream. [323]
 ✓ In the middle of the night he woke up with a bad dream.
 'Midnight' is twelve o'clock precisely, but 'the middle of the night' is a much less precise time well after people are asleep and well before they wake in the morning, e.g. two or three o'clock.

modernised

- x Their new headquarters is a very ~~modernised~~ building. [73]
 ✓ Their new headquarters is a very modern building.
 Only something that was old can be 'modernised', i.e. made more modern. A new building would be modern from the start.
 ✓ Their old headquarters have been fully modernised and are now very attractive and efficient.

more

- x Fruit is ~~more~~ cheaper from a hawker than in a shop. [119]
 ✓ Fruit is cheaper from a hawker than in a shop.
 Adjectives either take 'more' or add '-er' for the comparative, not both.
 ✓ Fruit is more expensive in a shop than from a hawker.

most

- 1 x Most of people are very kind. [186]
 ✓ Most people are very kind.
 'Most people' means most people in general; 'most of' can only be used with a clearly defined group:
 ✓ Most of the people I know are very kind.
 ✓ Most of them are very kind.
 2 x The ~~most~~ cheapest T-shirt was $8. [120]
 ✓ The cheapest T-shirt was $8.
 Adjectives either take 'most' or add '-est' for the superlative, not both.

need

- 'have to', are used.
 x There's no danger; he ~~need not~~ worry. [268]
 ✓ There's no danger; he need not worry.
 ✓ There's no danger; he doesn't need to worry.
 'Need not' is a special use of 'need' which is followed by an infinitive verb without 'to'. 'Need' does not take 's' for the third person singular in this case, which is only for questions and negative sentences.

nervous

- x Hong Kong is so busy and crowded that people are very ~~nervous~~. [31]
 ✓ Hong Kong is so busy and crowded that people are very tense.
 When a person's nerves are strained by an on-going situation, she is 'tense', 'nervy' or, colloquially, 'uptight'. When a person is unsure how well he will perform in a future situation (e.g. an exam or going to the dentist), he is 'nervous'.
 ✓ Rob was nervous about his tennis match the next day.

New Territories

- x They live in ~~the~~ New Territories now. [188]
 ✓ They live in the New Territories now.
 'The' must be used with the New Territories - as for most plural names of places: the United States, the Philippines.

news

- 1 x She passed her driving test - that's ~~a~~ good news! [167]
 ✓ She passed her driving test - that's good news!
 'News' is uncountable, so cannot take 'a'.
 2 x I heard ~~a~~ news about Macau on the television. [168]
 ✓ I heard some news about Macau on the television.
 ✓ I heard a news report about Macau on the television.

mother

- ✓ The most expensive T-shirt was $5.
 x My mother ~~language~~ is Spanish. [187]
 ✓ My mother tongue is Spanish.
 ✓ My native language is Spanish.
 The use of 'language' in the wrong example is quite logical, as in the Cantonese 母語, but English has two fixed expressions for this, 'mother tongue' and 'native language', and they cannot be altered.

MTR

- 1 x I travel to school on MTR. [187]
 ✓ I travel to school by MTR.
 ✓ I travel to school on the MTR.
 'By' is used without an article for ways of travelling: 'by bus', 'by tram', 'by plane' etc. At other times, 'MTR' as a noun takes 'the', for 'the Mass Transit Railway'.
 2 x I went to the MTR station and got on an ~~MTR~~. [75]
 ✓ I went to the MTR station and got on a train.
 The MTR is the name of the whole system; what one travels in is a 'train' with several 'carriages'.

much

- 1 x Hong Kong is much ~~h~~ crowded than Australia. [328]
 ✓ Hong Kong is much more crowded than Australia.
 The comparative is 'more crowded' and that is made stronger by saying 'much more crowded'.
 2 x In Hong Kong traffic congestion is ~~much~~ serious. [329]
 ✓ In Hong Kong traffic congestion is serious.
 'Much' is not often used before an adjective; it is usually 'very'.

must

- x Yesterday she ~~must~~ study for the exam. [300]
 ✓ Yesterday she had to study for the exam.
 'Must' has no past tenses of its own, so the past tenses of a similar verb,

Like other uncountable nouns, 'news' can take 'some' or it can be counted in other units, e.g. 'a piece of news', 'a news report' (in the media).

no matter

- 1 x No matter ~~h~~ you are old or young, you'll enjoy this film. [338]
 ✓ No matter whether you are old or young, you'll enjoy this film.
 The Cantonese just uses two characters, 無論, but the English requires the extra word 'whether'.
 2 x ~~No matter~~ he is important, he still has to wait his turn. [18]
 ✓ It doesn't matter if he is important, he still has to wait his turn.

noise

- x With a building site next door, it's very ~~noisy~~ here. [96]
 ✓ With a building site next door, it's very noisy here.
 'Noise' is a noun; its adjective is 'noisy'.

nowadays

- x ~~Nowaday~~, teenagers have much more money to spend. [97]
 ✓ Nowadays, teenagers have much more money to spend.
 'Nowadays' is an adverb and always ends in 's'.

object

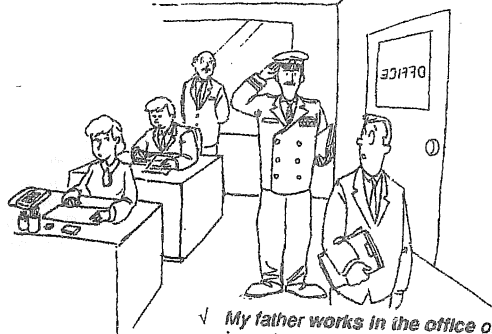

- x The manager ~~objects~~ ~~h~~ my plan. [250]
 ✓ The manager objects to my plan.
 The verb 'object' does not take a direct object. One objects 'to' something, or one objects 'to' someone 'about' something. One can also object 'that', followed by a clause.

o'clock

- x I got up at seven o'clock ~~am~~. [324]
 ✓ I got up at seven am.
 ✓ I got up at seven o'clock.
 'Am' or 'pm' cannot be used with 'o'clock'. When using 'o'clock' and it is necessary to specify the time of day, one has to say 'in the morning/afternoon/evening'.

x My father is an officer in an import-export firm.

32

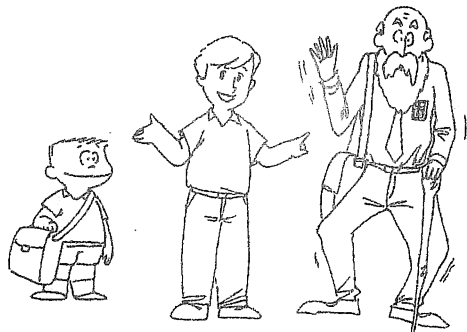

✓ My father works in the office of an import-export firm.
An 'officer' is a person of high rank in the army, navy, air force, police etc. Someone who works in an office should otherwise be given their specific job description, e.g. 'clerk', 'secretary', 'receptionist', 'messenger' etc.

old

- 1 x My sister is older than me four years.
✓ My sister is four years older than me. The amount of time comes before 'older/younger'.
- 2 x My young brother is in Kindergarten and my old brother is in Form 5.

112

76

one

✓ My young brother is in Kindergarten. My older brother is in Form 5. One can say 'young brother' as well as 'younger brother' when that brother is indeed young; but an 'older brother' may still be quite young.

325

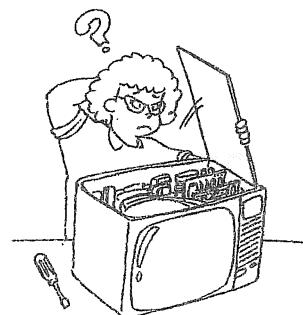

- 1 x One day morning we all went out for breakfast.
✓ One morning we all went out for breakfast. 'One day' and 'one morning' are both possible and even 'one Sunday morning' but 'day' is not used with 'morning/afternoon/evening/night'.
- 2 x Hong Kong is one of the most advanced city in Asia.
✓ Hong Kong is one of the most advanced cities in Asia. 'One of' is followed by a plural noun; in this case Hong Kong (singular) is being compared to other cities (plural) in Asia.

201

open

x She came in and opened the television.

33

✓ She came in and turned on the television. Cantonese uses 開 where the English is 'switch on' or 'turn on' for electrical appliances, e.g. light, radio, TV, air-conditioning etc.

Her look

opinion

- 1 x In my opinion, I think he should resign.
✓ In my opinion, he should resign.
✓ I think he should resign. 'In my opinion' refers to one's thinking on a subject, so 'I think' should not be added: use one or the other, not both.
- 2 x To my opinion it's too expensive.
✓ In my opinion, it's too expensive. One can say 'to my mind', but 'in my opinion'.

121

226 oppose

- x Many people oppose ~~to~~ the use of nuclear power.
- ✓ Many people oppose the use of nuclear power.
- ✓ Many people are opposed to the use of nuclear power. One 'opposes' someone/something but 'is opposed to' someone/something.

251

other

- x I'm Cantonese and I love Cantonese pop songs; I don't like other foreign songs.
- ✓ I'm Cantonese and I love Cantonese pop songs; I don't like foreign songs. To a Cantonese person, Cantonese songs are not foreign songs, so one can't refer to 'other' foreign songs unless some foreign songs have already been referred to, e.g.:
- ✓ I'm Cantonese; I love Cantonese pop songs and French songs too, but I don't like other foreign songs.

122

out

- x They published it out in the newspaper.
- ✓ They published it in the newspaper. The Cantonese 出版 means 'publish' and does not use 'out'. In a number of other cases, it follows a Cantonese verb but 'out' is not used in English see: GIVE, LIST, SELL and SHOW.

252

outlook

- x Her outlook was very smart - she was wearing a new business suit for the office.

34

own

- ✓ Her appearance was very smart - she was wearing a new business suit for the office. 'Appearance' is the way a person looks to others, but 'outlook' is the way a person looks at the world, at life etc - or, in general, what is likely to happen in the future.
- ✓ Her outlook on life is optimistic.
- ✓ The outlook is for fine weather over the weekend.

192

- x She has an own car.
- ✓ She has her own car. 'Own' must have a possessive in front of it - like 'her', 'Miss Lo's' etc. It is also a verb.
- ✓ She owns a car.

painful

- x I am very painful.

83

- ✓ I am in a lot of pain.
- ✓ My arm is very painful. 'Painful' means 'causing/giving pain', so a person is not usually 'painful' unless she/he is giving pain to others. The latter is colloquial and doesn't usually refer to physical pain. A person can be 'in pain'. The part of the body giving the pain can be described as 'painful': an arm/leg/head/tooth etc can be 'painful'. And a cut or wound or a fall can be 'painful'.

participate

- x She will participate in several activities today. [253]
 - ✓ She will participate in several activities today.
- The verb 'participate' does not take a direct object. One participates 'in' something.

pay

- x My aunt pays for the rent of this flat. [254]
 - ✓ My aunt pays the rent of this flat.
- One 'pays for' goods and services but one 'pays' an amount of money: charges/fees/rent/taxes etc. See also BILL.

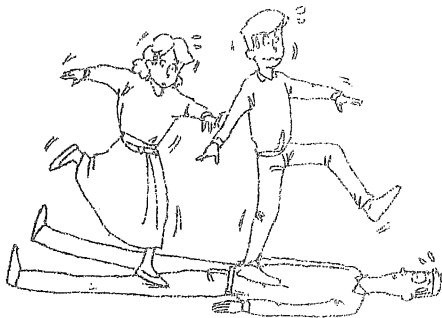

pay attention

- x You should pay more attention on that point. [255]
 - ✓ You should pay more attention to that point.
- One pays attention 'to' someone or something.

pedestrian

- x The pedestrian was too narrow to walk on. [25]

- ✓ The pavement was too narrow to walk on.
- A 'pedestrian' is a person walking in a street. The concrete area at the side of a road for pedestrians to walk on is a 'pavement' in British English, a 'sidewalk' in American English and a 'footpath' in Australian English.

56

English meanings, including bag, purse, packet and pocket. A 'packet' is an envelope or small parcel. A 'pocket' is in one's clothing:

- ✓ His trousers have two pockets, one on each side.
- There may also be confusion with 'pocket money' which is given by parents to children every week to have in their pockets for small expenses:
- ✓ She told her father she needed more pocket money in future.

point

- 1 x I used my finger to point at her. [361]
 - ✓ I pointed at her.
- The normal way of pointing is with a finger, so it is not necessary to mention that. When something else is used, the most common expression is:
- ✓ The teacher pointed at me with a ruler.
- 2 x The robber used his gun to point at me. [361]
 - ✓ The robber pointed his gun at me.
- With a gun or other weapon, the intention is not just to indicate someone but to be ready to fire at someone, so the expression is to 'point the weapon at' someone.

point of view

- 1 x From my point of view, that book is better. [227]
 - ✓ From my point of view, that book is better.
- One sees things 'from' a certain point of view.
- 2 x There are many point-of-views about politics. [203]
 - ✓ There are many points of view about politics.

police

- x I saw a police coming towards me. [171]
 - ✓ I saw a policeman/policewoman coming towards me.
 - x The robber was stopped by some police.
 - ✓ The robber was stopped by the police.
- 'Police' is a collective noun for the people

- x I'm proud of being a Hong Kong people. [256]
 - ✓ I'm proud of being a Hong Kong person.
- 'People' is the usual plural for 'person': one person, two people. The singular is clearly needed here.

phone

- x I phoned to a friend. [256]
 - ✓ I phoned a friend.
- 'To' is not used with the verb 'phone' or 'telephone' - it takes a direct object. One does, however, 'make a telephone call to' a person or place.

pity

- 1 x She is a very pity old person with no home. [146]
 - ✓ She is a very pitiful old person with no home.
- 'Pity' is a noun or verb; the adjective 'pitiful' means 'making others feel pity'.
- 2 x I feel very pity for him. [256]
 - ✓ I feel very sorry for him.
- One can 'feel great pity for' someone, but it is more common to say one 'feels sorry for' her/him.

play

- 1 x Every Sunday I play with my university friends. [36]
 - ✓ Every Sunday I go out with my university friends.
- In English only little children 'play'; adults and teenagers may 'play a game', 'play sport' etc but the Cantonese 玩 often means 'go out and enjoy oneself'.
- 2 x She likes to play bowling. [37]
 - ✓ She likes to go bowling.
- One 'plays' many sports, like football, basketball, tennis etc; but there are others where one 'goes' bowling, roller-skating, wind-surfing etc.

pocket

- x At Chinese New Year children are given red pockets of lucky money. [37]
 - ✓ At Chinese New Year children are given red packets of lucky money.
- The Cantonese 包 covers several 59

police force in general, so it cannot take 'a' nor have 's' added.

polite

- x The salesperson was very unpolite. [101]
 - ✓ The salesperson was very impolite.
- The opposite of 'polite' takes 'im-', not 'un-'.

poor

- x When his wife and child died, I felt the businessman was very poor. [84]
 - ✓ When his wife and child died, I felt the businessman was very unfortunate.
- When one says that someone is 'poor' it means she/he doesn't have much money. But when 'poor' is used in front of a noun/pronoun it can mean 'unfortunate':
- ✓ The poor man lost his wife and child in the fire.

prepare

- x Students should prepare the examination well. [257]
 - ✓ Students should prepare for the examination well.
- The Cantonese is 準備考試 in which 考 can have the force of a verb: 'prepare to sit an examination'. The English word 'examination' means both the event and the question paper, so it is a teacher who prepares the examination (writes the questions) and the students who prepare for it (get ready to answer them).

prepared

- x It's time to leave for the picnic; are you prepared to come? [38]
 - ✓ It's time to leave for the picnic; are you ready to come?
- To be 'prepared' to do something is to be willing to do it. The Cantonese 準備好 means 'ready'.

x In that shop the ~~prizes~~ are very high.

98

- ✓ In that shop the prices are very high. These two words sound similar except that the 'c' is unvoiced (soft) in 'price' and the 'z' is voiced (hard) in 'prize'.

problem

- x After a lot of effort, the problem was ~~improved~~.
 ✓ After a lot of effort, the problem was solved.
 A situation may 'improve' but a problem is 'solved' – or if not completely solved, it is 'eased' or 'reduced'.

59

prosperity

- x We all want a ~~prosperity~~ Hong Kong.
 ✓ We all want a prosperous Hong Kong.
 'Prosperity' is a noun. Reference is often made to the 'stability and prosperity' of Hong Kong. The adjectives for these two words are 'stable' and 'prosperous'.

147

put

- 1 x We ~~put~~ off our wet clothes.
 ✓ We took off our wet clothes.
 Although clothes are 'put on', they are 'taken off'.
 2 x She ~~put~~ out some money from her purse.
 ✓ She took out some money from her purse.
 Similarly, things are 'put in(to)' a purse/bag/pocket etc, but are 'taken out'.

362

362

62

very soon after receiving the letter, the feelings one had on reading/receiving the letter are already a little in the past. This applies to many other opening sentences in letters.

recognise

- x During primary school I ~~recognised~~ many friends.
 ✓ During primary school I made many friends.
 The Cantonese 認識 means both to be acquainted with and to recognise. To 'recognise' means to realise that one has known a person or place in the past, not to get to know someone for the first time.
 ✓ She recognised her as an old friend from primary school.

27

record

- x Rita came second in the 100 metres and her ~~record~~ was 12.7 seconds.
 ✓ Rita came second in the 100 metres and her time was 12.7 seconds.
 The Cantonese 記錄 means both 'to record' (i.e. write down) and 'the best ever performance in a particular event'. So the sheets on which results are recorded at many school sports days in Hong Kong often have a column headed 'Record' for each competitor after the name column, when it should be 'Time/Distance/Height' at an athletics competition. The correct use of 'record' as a noun is:
 ✓ Maria won the high jump and set a new record for Under 15 Girls.

41

relax

- 1 x After school, they ~~relaxed themselves~~.
 ✓ After school, they relaxed.
 One can 'relax muscles' or do something to relax another person, but one doesn't 'relax oneself' – the verb has no object in that case.
 2 x She works all the time and has no ~~relax~~.
 ✓ She works all the time and has no relaxation.
 'Relax' is a verb; the noun is 'relaxation'.

302

148

quiet

- x I'm ~~quiet~~ interested in poetry.
 ✓ I'm quite interested in poetry.
 'Quiet' and 'quite' are often confused in writing, but the sound is different: the 'e' is usually silent at the end of a word (e.g. quite), but in 'quiet' the 'e' gives a separate vowel sound to follow the 't'.

61

102 quite

- x It was a ~~quite~~ long time before he arrived.
 ✓ It was quite a long time before he arrived.

113

radio

- x I heard the song ~~in~~ the radio.
 x I heard the song ~~through~~ the radio.
 ✓ I heard the song on the radio.
 Programmes are broadcast 'on' radio/television.

228

read books

- x Every night I must ~~read the books~~ before I watch television.
 ✓ Every night I must study before I watch television.
 This is a literal translation of 讀書 which normally means 'study'. Reading books is generally a leisure activity.

39

reason

- 1 x The reason is ~~because~~ she was too busy.
 ✓ The reason is that she was too busy.
 'Reason' and 'because' should not be used together like this.
 2 x ~~Because~~ of this reason, they cancelled the project.
 ✓ For this reason, they cancelled the project.
 ✓ Because of this factor, they cancelled the project.

337

337 receive

- x Dear Mr Chan, I ~~am~~ pleased to receive your letter.
 ✓ Dear Mr Chan, I was pleased to receive your letter.
 The tense should be simple past because even if the reply is written

301

63 represent

- x I ~~represent~~ the whole school to wish you a happy retirement, Sir.
 ✓ On behalf of the whole school, I want to wish you a happy retirement, Sir.
 The Cantonese 代表, when speaking for others as well as oneself, means 'on behalf of'. It does mean 'represent' in other situations:
 ✓ Jim represented the school in the 200 metres freestyle event.

363

research

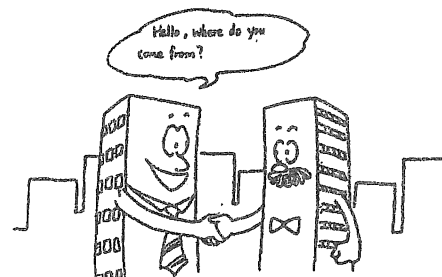

- x He has done ~~many~~ researches on that.
 ✓ He has done a lot of research on that.
 'Research' is uncountable, so cannot be plural.

170

residence

- x I am a ~~residence~~ of Shaukeiwan.

40

- ✓ I am a resident of Shaukeiwan.
 A 'residence' is a building where people live; while a 'resident' is a person who lives in a certain building or area/city/country.

result

- x He got ~~a~~ good result in the HKCE exams.
 ✓ He got good results in the HKCE exams.
 A student normally takes more than one subject in exams, so there is more than one result.

204

Proofreading: In each of the following questions, there is one or no mistake. For each question, you may underline one word and write another word above it to replace it; or put a ^ between two words and write down an additional word above the ^; or cross out one redundant word. If there is no mistake, put a ✓ on the far right.

1. Because she lives in the New Territories and her office is on Hong Kong Island, every day she wakes up at 6 o'clock a.m.
2. I will borrow that book from him because I am like it very much!
3. I am opposed to her suggestion of opening the air-conditioner; I think we can simply open the windows and let the wind get in to cool us down.
4. Many of parents in Hong Kong try their best to make their children work hard for public examinations.
5. Let me tell you a good news – most customers think that the price of the new product of our company is reasonable!
6. From my point of view, while F.5 students should work hard to prepare their HKCEE, they should also pay attention to their health.
7. If possible, I think F.5 students should still spare some time participating extra curricular activities.
8. I will make my father to give up smoking – in fact, most of our family members object to his smoking habit.
9. When I am travelling in other countries, I like recognizing new friends there.
10. Nowadays teenagers spend much money to make their own outlook more attractive – for example, my younger brother has just paid a lot for a new hairstyle.
11. Yesterday, I phoned to my friend to ask him to participate in the activity organized by my club.
12. You can hardly pay attention on the traffic if you are listening to music on your MP3 playing!
13. Why do I like this place? The reason is that it is very quite and I can relax here.
14. That social worker is very kind; last night when he knew that I had no money, he borrowed $500 to me.
15. If you feel hot, just put off your coat! Don't ask me to switch on the air-conditioner!
16. I like living in New Territories than living on Hong Kong Island.